Letter from the GEOS Librarian

Hello. I am Peter T. Hughes (GeoLib PH), the GEOS ARENA Software Librarian on QuantumLink, The Commodore Connection telecommunications service. I received the first GEOS 64 from Berkeley Softworks in April 1986. Since then I have been greatly involved in the GEOS world. I write the GEOS GEMS column and edit the GEOWORLD magazine, the definitive magazine about GEOS. GEOWORLD is published by Roger Ledbetter and is a great magazine for all GEOS users. It includes many articles from expert GEOS users and reviews many of the GEOS programs included in this directory. Some of the public domain or shareware programs are on GEOWORLD disks. GEOWORLD's address is: 38 Santa Ynez Street, Santa Barbara, CA 93103.

GEOS is a dream come true! It has menus, icons, windows, and a graphic WYSIWYG (What You See Is What You Get) interface that makes it easy for the user to perform complex operations. It turns your Commodore into a mini-Macintosh. Berkeley Softworks saved the Commodore 8 bit computer from extinction and pumped new life into it with the release of GEOS. The GEOS programs available now cover all the major applications such as word processing, spell checking, graphics, database, spreadsheet, charting, and desktop publishing. GEOS 2.0 supports all Commodore hardware: 64, 128 80 column, 1351 mouse, 1750 512K Ram Expansion Units, 1541, 1571, 1581 disk drives, dot-matrix and Postscript laser printers. There is news that a 40 Meg hard drive is coming out soon from a third party developer.

I wrote the GEOS Programs Directory as a comprehensive listing of all information about most all GEOS programs available. I want all the GEOS users to know what programs they can find that will do almost anything they want to do in GEOS. About a dozen great geoProgrammers have written programs that will do things never thought possible: a MacPaint converter, a GEOS terminal program, a music program, Postscript output files from geoWrite and geoPublish, large photo scrap makers, and great games.

I have included in this directory as many programs that I could find. There are some programs I did not list because I did not have them such as geoProgrammer and programming utilities or programs that did not run under GEOS and were basic programs. I have included a list of as many addresses of programmers that were included in the programs, so that you can send comments and shareware donations and receive updates or bug fixes.

I wish to thank Berkeley Softworks for creating GEOS and all the programmers who have written many outstanding programs. I especially thank the following programmers: Joe Buckley, Jim Collette, Fran Kostella, Bill Coleman, and Randy Winchester.

If you wish to contact me in order to send comments, corrections, questions or to let me know of other programs to include in this directory, please write to the following address:

Peter T. Hughes (GeoLib PH) 151 Randolph Street, Canton, MA 02021.

I thank you for ordering this directory. I hope you find it useful for finding the GEOS programs you need.
